Still going strong at age 107

By RON JENNINGS
Staff Writer

When Mrs. Mattie Edmondston's friends stopped by Monday to wish her happy birthday, they didn't have to worry about tracking any weekend snow into her home at 2003 East Seventh.

Mrs. Edmondston, who is 107 years old Tuesday, saw to that herself — sweeping a straw broom briskly across her top step she had quickly cleared a small path in front of her door by 9:30 a.m.

Did it wear her out?
"Heaven's no, honey," she chuckled. "It's easier for me to sweep it off out here than to clean it up inside later on. Besides, I had to have some excuse to get out in this clean, cold air for a while!"

Because of her advanced years, Mrs. Edmondston lives with a younger family member who helps with the harder household chores — her 98-year-old niece, Mrs. Stella Oswald. Just keeping track of Mrs. Edmondston, she jokingly lamented, "is enough to make a body feel old — almost, that is."

Standing on tiptoe to peer down through the door glass at the steps outside, Mrs. Oswald shook her hand softly and sighed.

"You know, I don't even let Aunt Matt have my good broom," she said with a wink. "She handles a broom like a scoop shovel, just working and wearing the daylight out of it. I can't always keep her from sweeping like the dickens, so about all I can do is make sure she doesn't use my good one!"

As one might suspect from even a brief chat with Mrs. Edmondston, it isn't just snow that falls prey to her busy broom. In the summer, it's grass clippings; in autumn, the falling leaves. In short, throughout the year, Mrs. Edmondston enjoys sweeping and savoring a world that she says "has been a satisfaction to me."

"Whatever time of the year it is, I enjoy it and get as much as I can from it," she said Monday as she settled down in her living room chair to a marathon birthday card-opening session. Ripping through the envelopes with quick, steady movements, Mrs. Edmondston would read, smile and pause a minute between each one.

"In the spring, I like to look out and see the plants a'growin again and in the summer, things are always coming up around here. Then, in the fall, why the leaves just commence to tumbling and, well, here we are in winter with things so pretty and white and all."

When she's not sitting near her front window looking out, or sweeping her step or reposing in her favorite outdoor chair on the front

Details from Teasdale awaited

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Legislative leaders are waiting to hear the details of Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale's plans for the future.

But they agree with the theme Teasdale set out for his four-year term during his inaugural address on Monday.

"The Democratic form of government exists primarily to protect and increase the dignity of every citizen," Teasdale told the crowd of nearly 2,000 that braved near-zero temperatures, blowing snow and gusting winds to see the governor's office returned to the Democratic Party.

Because of the inclement weather, the inaugural address, which Teasdale wrote himself, was short, dealing only with what he termed the theme of his administration. Specific legislative proposals will be made in a lengthy message to the General Assembly on Wednesday.

"He just set the tone to me," said

House Speaker Kenneth Rothman, "that he's going to be a real people's governor."

But Democratic House Floor Leader Joe Holt as well as Rothman and others said the details of the legislative message would provide the real meaning of the inaugural address.

"This was kind of a skeleton," Holt said. "It will be interesting to see the kinds of programs that will be used to carry out the theme."

Senate President Pro Tem Norman Merrell said he felt the speech showed Teasdale had accepted the responsibility given to him by the voters and "I'm quite sure he'll have a strong message of leadership when he delivers it Wednesday to a joint session."

Teasdale, 40, the first governor from Kansas City, took the oath of office from Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert Seiler at noon after the inaugural ceremonies were recessed for 10 minutes because the program had moved ahead too quickly. During the recess many of the dignitaries and others retreated to the Capitol to escape the bitter cold. But Teasdale, along with outgoing Republican Gov. Christopher S. Bond, 37, remained on the outside platform throughout.

At one point during the ceremony, Rothman said the new governor turned to him and said, "This must be my first mistake."

At least 20 persons were treated for exposure and frostbite including the woman who played the piano for the inaugural ceremonies. She suffered minor frostbite on all 10 fingers. During the 45-minute inauguration, National Guardsmen distributed blankets to dignitaries and some persons in the crowd.

Transaction 'poorly structured'

Lehr denounces prison deal

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The aborted attempt to purchase a 261-acre tract in southern Kansas City for a new medium security prison involved a number of potential accounting and legal irregularities, according to a report of outgoing state Auditor George Lehr issued today.

"This entire transaction was poorly structured from the standpoint of good business and legal practices," the report on Lehr's investigation into the land deal said. "We urge the new administration to...avoid any errors and omissions of this transaction in future prison land acquisitions."

Lehr, a Democrat, conducted a series of hearings into the activities surrounding the land purchase attempt. The hearings were held during Democrat Joseph P. Teasdale's campaign for governor against Republican Christopher S. Bond.

Lehr said he was turning over his report and transcripts of the lengthy hearings held on the deal to the Missouri Real Estate Commission and the attorney general's office for any further action "they may deem appropriate."

Lehr, who distributed his report to a news conference in Kansas City today, declared he found no indication of wrongdoing or criminal action in the matter, but asserted the state was guilty of "very poor procedure in not staying on top of the transaction."

The land deal, handled primarily by former Commissioner of Administration J. Neil Nielsen, called for the purchase of the tract for $1.3 million from two owners. The binding contract was breached, however, after neighborhood opposition to the proposed prison intensified.

The state ultimately lost $81,000 on the deal, which occurred during the final months of the Bond administration.

Teasdale, who took office on Monday, has not indicated what he plans for the new prison, although he has said he is not committed to locating the facility in an urban area where the legislature had originally intended.

Among the major criticisms of the Bond administration's handling of the deal included in the investigation report was apparent failure to make full disclosure of the parties being represented by the realtor, B. A. Karbank Co., as required by law. Karbank handled the aborted transaction for both the state and the landowners.

New York town evacuated after fire

By TRUDY TYNAN
Associated Press Writer

PHILMONT, N.Y. (AP) — All 1,300 residents were evacuated as "near-blizzard conditions" slowed firemen's efforts to battle an overnight blaze that spread rapidly from a rubber factory in this old mill town.

No serious injuries were reported, but the fire and the explosion that preceded it destroyed the factory, which was to have become the town's chief employer.

Many of the residents sought safety in a nursing home on a hill above the village as winds whipped the flames through half the community, the Columbia County fire dispatcher said.

As many as 11 different fires were reported at one time, fire officials said. Besides the factory, two apartment buildings, two stores and a barbershop were gutted.

About 200 firemen from 20 surrounding units had the fires under control after six hours in temperatures below 20 degrees.

The four-story 19th century brick mill building that housed the factory still smoldered early today, casting a haze over the entire town, which is located in hilly terrain about 30 miles southeast of Albany, near the Massachusetts and Connecticut borders.

Firemen, whose arrival was delayed by snow- and ice-covered roads after the first alarm went out about 7:47 p.m., had to chip their hoses out from under 8 to 10 inches of ice that accumulated as they fought the flames.

Upon returning to the firehouse, many had to be literally chiseled out of their coats. One fireman had 3-inch-long icicles in his beard.

Mayor Clinton Mossman, who helped flight the fire, said "We had pinned all our hopes" on the X-Tyal plant, which had started operations three months ago making rubber liferafts and other items for the government.

The factory, owned by a Beacon, N.Y., firm, had 60 workers but was to have employed up to 300 later this year.

Deputy sheriff Bob DiRuzzio said the fire apparently started as two men were working at an oven in the plant.

"One worker tried to put it out with an extinguisher," DiRuzzio said, "but it just got out of control. When the first fireman got there, it was already up in flames."

Gas crisis passes

Cold spell continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Residents of Missouri and Kansas were told today they could turn their thermostats back up to a more comfortable range following a day and a half of a shivering during a natural gas supply shortage.

R. J. Tipton, spokesman for the Gas Service Co., which distributes natural gas to more than three-quarters of a million people in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma, said the crisis had passed for the time being.

"Weather conditions and forecasts have moderated sufficiently to permit residential and small commercial customers to resume normal but conservative use of gas," Tipton said. Gas Service Co. called on its customers in the four states to turn their thermostats back to 55 degrees Sunday because gas distribution lines from Cities Service Gas Co. could not handle the demand caused by record-breaking cold weather in the Midwest.

Tipton credited the cutback by gas customers with helping the company overcome the crisis. He cautioned that another spell of extremely cold weather could create new problems because "gas availability has been reduced significantly by this winter's weather, which has been 25 per cent colder than normal."

Although the weather forecast called for only a gradual increase in the record-breaking temperatures of the past several days, Tipton said that "anytime temperatures are zero or above, the Cities Service system can handle it."

Temperatures fell below zero over much of the two-state area during the night, but temperatures today were warming into the teens in many areas.

Some major installations, like Kansas City International Airport, converted from gas heat to oil Monday in response to the problem.

The Gas Service Co., receives most of its natural gas from Cities Service Gas Co., which said the call for reduced use affected about 2.7 million persons in 502 communities.

A handful of residents remained for a second night at the high school in tiny Polo, Mo., which ran out of natural gas Sunday during a snowstorm. But most of the town's citizens managed to furnish their homes with some type of heat as the city's gas utility rebuilt gas line pressure to nearby wells.

Polo, a community of 500 persons, is about 40 miles northeast of Kansas City.

The situation was also improving in Springfield, where City Utilities had warned of gas shortages if customers did not cut back. City Utilities is also supplied by Cities Service.

A spokesman said there was good response to the warning but indicated the curtailment would remain in effect until warmer weather.

Kansas officials of Gas Service said

Monday the crisis was over in their state and the Kansas Power and Light Co., the state's other big distributor, said it was asking residents to reduce consumption in just four communities.

Schools remained closed in most parts of Kansas and Missouri, including Kansas City and Topeka, because of the cold weather and icy roads.

Record-shattering cold weather hit Missouri again during the night. The weather service said the temperature unofficially reached -24 during the night at Fredericktown, about 100 miles south of St. Louis.

A spokesman at the Sedalia Water Department said the temperature unofficially reached -22 during the night.

The weather service does not keep temperature records for nonurban areas but said the Fredericktown low was probably a record for the date. The same was true at Union, where the temperature fell to -23; Plattsburg, -22; Butler, -19; Cape Girardeau, -18, and Kirksville, -17.

An early morning reading of -15 at Columbia set a record for the month of January. The old record was a reading of -11 in 1970. A record also was set today at Macon, where the temperature fell to -14, three degrees colder than the old record.

High temperatures in the state Monday ranged from 15 at West Plains to 2 at Columbia and Kansas City.

French court frees Daoud despite pleas

PARIS (AP) — A French court today freed Abu Daoud, who allegedly commanded the slaying of Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics, and within hours the Palestinian boarded a plane for Algiers.

The court rejected West German and Israeli requests that Daoud be extradited to their countries, saying there were no legal grounds for holding him.

Daoud was whisked from the court to collect his belongings at a Paris prison and was then rushed in a high-speed, seven-car official convoy to Orly airport for the flight.

When he was arrested last Friday, Daoud was carrying an Iraqi passport under another name. He maintained in court that this was his real identity.

The Palestine Liberation Organization hailed the French action, but a Bavarian state government spokesman in Munich said authorities there were "very surprised."

West Germany and France's other European partners recently concluded a convention against terrorism. The court decision was expected to stir heated reaction in Israel.

Approval expected for Cabinet picks

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be a few tough questions waiting for some of President-elect Carter's Cabinet nominees, but all are expected to win Senate confirmation.

Senate committees opened hearings today on four of Carter's nominees to Cabinet posts and on Charles L. Schultze, tapped for the Cabinet-level job of heading the Council of Economic Advisers.

Testifying on Capitol Hill were Griffin B. Bell, nominated for attorney general; Harold Brown, nominated for defense secretary; Cyrus R. Vance, nominated for secretary of state, and Bob Bergland, nominated for secretary of agriculture.

Of the four Cabinet nominees, Bell and Brown were the two most likely to face tough questions.

Vance pledged to make concern for human rights a fundamental part of U.S. foreign policy.

"We must have policies based on fundamental values," Vance told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "We must stand for human rights — without intervention" in other nations' affairs.

Vance stressed a commitment to maintaining peace and to conducting an open foreign policy. "All that can be disclosed in open session shall be disclosed," he promised.

Bergland told the Senate Agriculture Committee that he favors development of a global strategy for the world's food needs, with restraints if necessary on U.S. food sales abroad.

Bergland said he has discussed with Carter, Vance and Treasury secretary-designate Michael Blumenthal "the need to involve Agriculture in the highest parts of government and the need for the development of a global strategy for the world's food needs."

Asked by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., if the Carter administration would put embargoes on food exports, Bergland avoided the use of the word embargo but said, "we need to use restraints. We have gone through devastating droughts in Minnesota last year, for instance, and if this should spread to other states we could be in trouble."

Bell, an Atlanta lawyer, is a one-time federal judge, longtime Carter friend and so far the most controversial of Carter's nominees.

The Senate Judiciary Committee scheduled hearings on Bell that could last several days. And while a number of black leaders and civil rights and liberal groups have requested time to speak out against Bell, there appeared to be little opposition to him from committee members.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., one of the committee's liberals, predicted on Monday that the panel will approve Bell "unless there is something we don't know now" that is revealed during the hearings.

But opponents such as the Congressional Black Caucus and the NAACP have vowed to fight Bell's confirmation.

Bell served 15 years on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and Carter views his nominee's civil rights record as "superb."

Simmie W. Welch

Simmie W. Welch, 80, 1621 South Ingram, died at 8 p.m. Sunday at Rest Haven Nursing Home.

He was born on June 14, 1896, in Pettis County, son of the late Thomas and Jemima Payne Welch. On May 1, 1918, he married Beulah Williams, who survives of the home.

Mr. Welch had been a resident here all his life and was a painter helper at the Missouri Pacific Railway shops before his retirement in 1963. He was a member and elder of the Parkview Christian Church (formerly East Broadway Christian Church), a veteran of World War I, a member of the American Legion Post Number 16, and a War Dad. He was also a member of Liberty Lodge Number 506, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen.

Other survivors include one son, Jarold Welch, Route 1; four daughters, Mrs. N. E. (Helen) Whittington, 1625 East Sixth; Mrs. C. E. (Dorothy) Kirkpatrick, LaMonte; Mrs. Neil (Bertha Jean) Hayes, Holden; Mrs. Jack (Ruth) Mosley, Ft. Pierce, Fla.; two brothers, George Welch, Clarksburg; Cecil Welch, LaMonte; one sister, Mrs. Josephine Whitley, Minneola, Fla.; seven grandchildren, and 25 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home with the Rev. Dan Sites, pastor of the Parkview Christian Church, officiating.

Active pallbearers will be Frank Fowler, James Robert Hall, J. W. Hammond, Lawrence Rose, Jerry Welch and Ron Welch. Honorary pallbearers will be Max Fields, Floyd Johnson, Martin Lange, Elliott Steele, W. H. Swift, Charles Watson and Ron Welge.

Burial will be in Highland Sacred Gardens.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral home.

Mrs. Bertha Williams

Mrs. Bertha A. Williams, 86, 227 South Missouri, died at her home Monday night.

Survivors include her husband, Roy, of the home.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. The body is at the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home.

W. Homer Cunningham

HUGHESVILLE — W. Homer Cunningham, 75, died at his home here Tuesday morning.

Survivors include his wife, Kathryn, of the home; and two sons, including Robert Cunningham, Hughesville.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. The body is at the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home, Sedalia.

Robert C. Sevier

LaMONTE — Funeral services for Robert C. Sevier, 78, who died Monday morning at his home here, will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Knob Noster Christian Church with the Rev. Harvey Tyler Officiating.

Burial will be in the Knob Noster Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Moore Funeral Home here.

Maurice F. Hogan

Funeral services for Maurice F. Hogan, 63, 2509 Stephenson, former postmaster here for 25 years, who died early Monday morning at Bothwell Hospital, will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church with the Rev. Vincent Hoying officiating.

Pallbearers will be Max Cassing, Lynn Hackler, Tom Gray, Roy Hinton, Glen R. Johnson and Noah E. Harris.

Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. The rosary will be recited at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel.

Second man is hired under new program

Harold Plummer, 916 South Ohio, has been hired as a third member of the city building inspection department at a federally-funded salary of $815 a month.

Plummer's position was authorized recently under Title II of the Public Service Employment Act. The employment of a second city official under this program, economic development specialist Greg Cecil, was announced Monday.

Plummer recently moved to Sedalia after working 15 years in the Kansas City public works department. He will serve as an assistant building inspector along with Nelson Lee. Because of the extra manpower, City Building Inspector Woodrow Garrison's title has now changed to building official. As such, Garrison explained Tuesday, he will spend more time than before in his office performing necessary paperwork and updating various city codes. He will continue to conduct periodic inspections, he said.

His first new priority as building official, Garrison said, will be a code-updating project. Eventually, he said, he hopes to update the city mechanical, electrical, plumbing, building and sign codes in addition to helping update planning and zoning regulations. Because up until now he has had to conduct inspections every afternoon, "I haven't had the time it takes to update all these codes the way it should properly be done," Garrison stated.

Code revisions are necessary, he explained, because of improvements and modifications made in these various fields over the years.

Commenting on Plummer's appointment, Garrison said, "We're lucky to have him. He has experience and that's what's needed for this job."

Free rides on OATS buses to begin here

Because the Older Adults Transportation Service has resumed its contract with the State Division of Family Services (DFS), persons certified by the Pettis County DFS may ride the two local OATS busses free-of-charge on all trips except pleasure excursions.

Beginning Wednesday, area OATS director Chuck Haley said Tuesday, the local OATS handicap bus will start transporting persons to the senior citizens nutrition site adjacent to the Sedalia Community Center. Within 60 days, Haley estimated, "we may have up to 30 people riding to the site on our bus every day."

The special handicap bus, which is equipped with special facilities for wheelchair passengers, is currently transporting employees to and from the local sheltered workshop. It will continue to provide this service.

Persons qualified under the DFS program will also be able to ride in the regular 14-passenger OATS van. Haley anticipated an upsurge in local OATS participation because of the DFS arrangement.

Man bound over on assault charges

Gary Whitworth, 19, Route 2, LaMonte, was bound over to Circuit Court for trial following his Tuesday morning appearance in Magistrate Court on felony charges of assaulting a police officer.

According to reports, Whitworth allegedly engaged in a pushing and shoving incident with LaMonte Police Chief Danny Lassiter about 12:30 a.m. on Oct. 30. Lassiter was reportedly trying to apprehend a juvenile on curfew violation charges when the incident took place.

Whitworth remains free on $3,500 bond, pending his Circuit Court trial.

Arctic-like weather kills eight in Missouri, Kansas

By the Associated Press

Eight persons in Missouri and Kansas, most of them elderly, died over the weekend and Monday as a result of the arctic-like weather gripping the two states.

The latest victim was Overland, Mo., Alderman Claude F. (Hap) Weseman, 73. Weseman, an alderman for almost 20 years, was found at his home about 7:20 p.m. Monday, after he failed to attend a 7 p.m. meeting of the board of aldermen.

When the usually punctual Weseman had not arrived at the meeting by shortly after 7, three aldermen and Overland Police Chief Ray Poeschel went to Weseman's home.

Poeschel forced open the front door and found Weseman's body lying fully clothed across a bed.

The driveway and sidewalk to the home had been cleared of snow and a shovel and salt were found inside the door to the house, police said.

Weseman had apparently shoveled the snow despite a physician's orders not to exert himself, police said.

Vladimir Oleshchuk, a 50-year-old St. Louis County man with a history of heart trouble, collapsed and died at a hospital after walking to work Monday morning.

An apparent heart attack claimed the life of Earl Bush, 59, of University City, Mo., while he shoveled snow Monday at his home.

Fred W. Huffman, 75, of Overland Park, Kan., apparently struck his head or died of a heart attack Sunday night outside his apartment while returning from a grocery store.

Exposure apparently resulted in the deaths Sunday of Helen Kovac, 84, of Kansas City, Kan., and Roland French, 45, of St. Louis; and Saturday of Hubert W. Kraus, 57, of Kahoka, Mo.

Rose Breckinridge, 71, of suburban St. Louis, died Sunday after apparently suffering a heart attack while shoveling snow.

Two other persons, Robert B. Kennally, 54, and his wife Flossie, 64, of Kansas City, died Monday in a fire indirectly related to the weather. The blaze apparently was caused by an electric heater they were using after turning down their gas furnace in response to pleas to curtail natural gas use.

lawn, Mrs. Edmondston likes to visit, watch television and, she laughingly added, "sometimes have a thing or two done for me." Her favorite TV programs are Lawrence Welk and Hee Haw.—"especially Roy Clark, he's the best of all."

While downplaying the notion of probably being Sedalia's oldest resident, she is proud of one particular accomplishment — in her quest to see Clark in person, she also became no doubt the oldest person ever to appear on a grandstand show at the Missouri State Fair.

In 1973, when she was 103, her idol, Clark, heard that Mrs. Edmondston was in the audience. He had some of her friends bring her on stage and "I've never forgotten that," she firmly stated.

Mrs. Edmondston is equally pleased with her employment record — and the fact that she "put one over" on her employers in Kansas City. A food service employee at three Kansas City hospitals for nearly 40 years, Mrs. Edmondston worked till she was 90.

"They didn't know how old I really was and I didn't tell them for fear they'd make me quit," she recalled in triumph. "I kept working hard until my last day on the job."

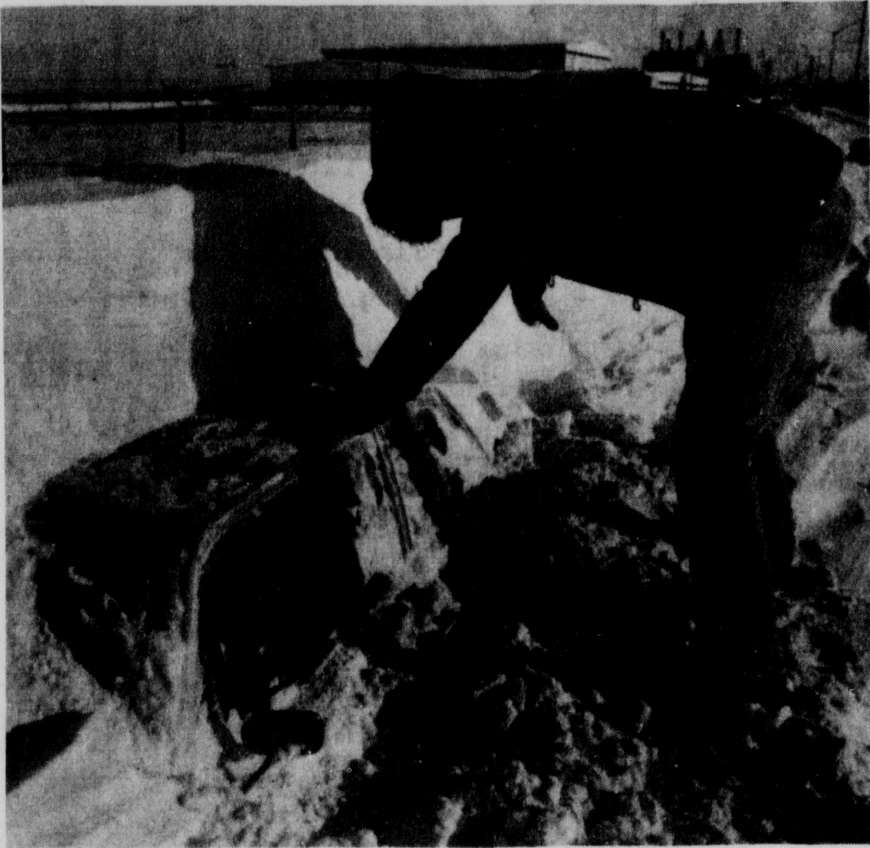

In 1960, after finally retiring, she moved to Sedalia along with her son and daughter-in-law. This son, as well as her other three sons and her husband, are all now dead. She has lived with Mrs. Oswald for about the past year and a half.

Although working in hospitals for many years, Mrs. Edmondston hasn't got much use for them — or medicine — when it comes to her personal life.

"I'm not taking any pills now and I don't plan on going to the hospital," she said. "I just want a quiet celebration, nothing fancy for me."

When you're 107, however, it's sometimes hard to keep things as low-profile as you'd like. Already, Mrs. Edmondston has received congratulations from Mayor Allen Hawkins, who offered his "kindest regards." And then, of course, there was the small matter of being interviewed by the newspaper.

"I don't know why you're making such a big fuss," she teased. "I'm only 107. Why don't you wait and come back a few years from now?"

Lehr resigns today, takes post at bank

KANSAS CITY (AP) — George Lehr, who resigned effective today as Missouri state auditor, said he has accepted the presidency of a Kansas City bank.

Lehr, a Democrat, told a news conference here he believes his chief deputy, James Antonio, would be named by Gov. Joseph Teasdale to succeed him as state auditor. Teasdale's office said a statement would be issued later in the day about the auditor's office.

Lehr said in September that he planned to resign as auditor to spend more time with a son who has muscular dystrophy. He delayed his formal resignation until Teasdale, also a Democrat, took over from Republican Christopher S. Bond. Lehr, once considered a possible Democratic gubernatorial nominee, served two years as auditor.

Lehr repeated an earlier statement that he could foresee no circumstances under which he would re-enter public life. He said, however, that he would maintain an active interest in public affairs and in the Democratic party.

New policy started in bad check cases

The Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney's office has announced a new policy regarding bad checks that, according to a news release issued Monday, will facilitate "efficient prosecution of current check offenders" and will aid in the "reduction of future check offenses."

It could also ultimately make it harder to cash a check or write a check for merchandise at local stores and businesses.

J. William Turley, assistant prosecuting attorney, has announced that bad check offenses will not be prosecuted unless six conditions are met by the person wishing to press charges.

Turley's statement says bad check offenses will not be prosecuted if:

— checks are drawn on out-of-state banks;

— the bad check is endorsed by two or more persons (two-party check) before the final recipient presents it to the bank involved for payment;

— the bad check does not show at least two forms of identification;

— the bad check does not bear the initials or some other form of identification of the person who originally accepted the check;

— the bad check does not bear the address of the check-writer;

— the person wishing to prosecute has not "properly" notified the check-writer by certified mail of the bank's refusal to make good on the check.

The prosecutor's office should not be used as a collection agency for bad checks, the release says. If a person signs a complaint against someone writing a bad check, he should be willing to cooperate and "aid in this prosecution and it should be understood that the simple payment of the amount of the check will not result in the dismissal of charges..."

Turley also pointed out in the release that the person who originally accepted a

Lehr said he had accepted the presidency of the Empire State Bank and Trust Co. of Kansas City. He is a principal in the holding company that owns the bank. He announced that the bank's board had authorized the start of a $400,000 renovation of its facilities in the Textile Building in downtown Kansas City.

"I'm also pleased to announce that I have been invited to serve on some corporate boards of directors, some of which I will accept in the coming weeks," Lehr said. He said his name would be placed before the nominating committee of the Muscular Dystrophy Association to become a national corporate member.

"Finally, the group of some 20 investors which I am involved with...are seeking other investment opportunities, and we are talking with two media properties and two other financial institutions," Lehr said. He would not identify the media interests but said they were a radio and television station outside the Kansas City area.

bad check should be able to identify the person who wrote it in court. Otherwise, no charges can be filed, the release says.

Turley said Tuesday morning that the policy is being put into effect to ensure that check cases received by his office are "prosecutable" and that the office is not being used as a collection agency.

"There is no economical way we (the prosecutor's office) can do it (handle cases presented to the office)...without that criteria being met," Turley said. Witness fees, long-distance trips and other problems are involved each time a particular case goes before the magistrate and circuit judges, he noted.

The policy (effective Jan. 3) will enable check cases to be handled in a "routine fashion," Turley said, indicating it will be more economical to the taxpayer in the long run to handle only those cases which can and will be prosecuted.

Inventory turns up missing items

Although it was at first thought nothing was taken in a break-in at Lyle's Cleaners, Fifth and Engineer, overnight Sunday, an inventory Monday turned up three missing items and 30 cents in change.

Police discovered three broken windows at the business about 5 a.m. Monday. However the rest of the building was secure. Later it was determined that an adding machine, valued at $85, two staple guns and the change were missing.

In other police news:

— Wayne Lorenz, 1614 East 13th, reported the theft of a .410 gauge shotgun, valued at $50, from his home Saturday night. Lorenz told police that he had an argument with an acquaintance earlier Saturday evening and returned home to find the gun missing and the other man's gloves in the kitchen.

Court defines segregation, zoning rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communities are not required to alter zoning laws to provide housing for low-income families, the Supreme Court said today.

The court's 5-3 ruling carries far-reaching consequences for many of the nation's suburban areas now closed to blacks and other minorities.

In an opinion written by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., the court said predominantly white communities do not have to make certain allowances for integration unless there is proof of purposeful racial discrimination.

The court reversed a decision by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the Arlington Heights, Ill., board of trustees was guilty of racial discrimination when it refused to rezone a 15-acre plot of land for a low-income housing project.

"Disproportionate impact is not irrelevant, but it is not the sole touchstone of an invidious racial discrimination," Powell's opinion said.

Today's court ruling limits how far federal courts can go in helping blacks and other minorities find housing in predominantly white communities. If the circuit court ruling had been allowed to stand, other municipalities could have found themselves facing legal tests about their decisions.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist concurred in the majority opinion. Justice Byron R. White filed a dissenting opinion, and Justices Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr. dissented from a major portion of the majority opinion.

Justice John Paul Stevens took no part in consideration of the case.

The court's majority depended on a 1976 decision that official action will not be held unconstitutional simply because it results in a racially disproportionate impact.

Your attic or closet may hold fashions for 1977

By Rosette Hargrove
PARIS (NEA) — Quick! Look in the closet, basement or attic. Do those untouched boxes hold a fashion treasure for spring and summer wear?

They do if you wisely stored in them such "haute couture" inspired items of yesteryear — hot pants, mini-skirts, mini-tunics, lace-up sandals. These are all returning with fashion's blessings this year and it makes one wonder if we shouldn't buy larger houses or apartments with more closet space or rent storage to keep this year's most stylish items around to wear in another five or 10 years.

Unfortunately, that is far from possible for most today. As a result, we will follow what is the "Paris chic" for the coming warmer months.

Latest ready-to-wear showings dictate that the overall picture to capture is that of a healthy, unsophisticated, athletic, spontaneous beauty — the type who does not waste time thinking in terms of chic but rather of self-expression.

But it won't be all that easy. The huge sweaters, brief shorts, mini-tunics, no bras, flat-heeled, lace-up sandals,

T-shirts and track suits are strictly for the younger silhouette.

The mini-skirt now is presumably meant for leisure hours at home and not for wearing to the office or supermarket. The same applies to variations on trousers—from the spahi, zouave, harem, culotte, pantalon and briefest of knickers. A girl will have to be sure of her underpinnings before she can adopt all — if any — of these ideas. However, the classic pants suit — soft, unlined — is still featured.

There are plenty of less contrived styles for women who are not especially anxious to look conspicuous. Understated elegance may be unknown to the younger generation but creators like Givenchy, Balmain, Patou, Dior, Jean-Louis Scherrer create clothes that tend to enhance a wearer's good points and camouflage the not so good. Soft summer evening models are more exotic with a la Bardot sheaths in black cotton or chiffon slit to the thigh, shoestring or bateau necklines. Colors, other than white and black, are acid. Brigitte Bardot never was hailed as a chic Parisienne. Asked whether she had had a change of heart she shrugged her shoulders. "Whatever is defined as elegance. I have never possessed. But I did launch a few ideas (including her dress in checked red and white Vichy cotton). I did, however, personally decide on the style of each number in the collection."

She declared, en passant, she had given up the cinema and wanted to fulfill her ego in another direction, i.e., fashion.

Newcomer in the fashion arena is former sex kitten Brigitte Bardot. She sponsored a ready-to-wear collection by Arlette Nastaat who has made BB's clothes for the last 17 years.

For daytime there is a line of "unconstructed," naive dresses which Bardot has always favored, with the sensual note withal present in the high bosom line and full gypsy skirts, all in plain, checked or flowered cottons or "broderie anglaise."

How to repair bean bag chair

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I read L.D.'s problem with the plastic front on a clock radio being painted with nail polish by her child. Your answer was that your experiments showed nail polish remover took away the polish but left your plastic dull looking. Did you then try using clear nail polish on the face of the clock after the polish was removed? This worked well for me on the very scratched face on a wrist watch. The polish must be new so it flows on freely and easily. The polish will also help glue in a loose crystal or face of a watch or clock. This should be first tested on a small area, as some plastic reacts differently from others. — B.R.O.

DEAR POLLY — I save large foil pie pans. They are great to use under paper picnic plates, making handling easier and safer. — MRS. S.S.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Is there an easy way to repair a vinyl bean bag chair? Once, I removed the contents and restitched the seams but that did not last. Is there any tape, glue or whatever that will work?

My Pointer is for those who hate to take eggs from the carton to fill the egg tray in the refrigerator. I simply tear off the top lid and set the bottom of the carton with the eggs in it right into the egg tray. — MRS. L.R.

DEAR MRS. L.R. — I know of no way to mend a bean bag chair except by resewing the seams. If you put a bit less stuffing back in after stitching the seams further in from the edges, it might last longer. How about this readers — have any of you discovered a good way to repair such chairs. — POLLY. (NEA)

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Bel-tone. A non-operating model of the smallest Bel-tone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

True, all hearing problems are not alike... and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid. But audiologists report that many can. So, send for this non-operating model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 5925, Bel-tone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Ill. 60646.

Old one-two punch for county farmers

Pettis County farmers would like to forget all about 1976. And so far, 1977 isn't proving to be a heck of a lot better.

Thanks to the drought, Pettis County farmers closed out the year with only slightly more than half the normal annual precipitation. Crop and pasture land alike suffered from the bone-dry growing season.

Although there is moisture in the snow that presently blankets the county, it has put an extra burden on many cattlemen to feed their stock. Hay is available, although costly, and grain even more so. Some smaller operators are no doubt finding that the cost involved is not worth it, and have sold off or sharply culled out their herds.

The drought that carried over into the fall and winter months has dried up many farm ponds and even some wells. This further complicates the already bad local farm situation.

Before leaving office, Gov.

Buddy, can you spare $20 for a cup of...

WASHINGTON—The first inkling that the price of coffee had gotten out of hand was in early 1977 when the IRS announced you could deduct the price of the first cup of coffee, when discussing business, but you could not deduct the second cup. Also, you could no longer buy your wife a cup of coffee unless you could prove it was necessary for her to be there when the business conversation was held.

In a few months coffee had become a luxury item and was only served in the finest restaurants. At $20 a cup, some eating places offered to give you a free meal if you bought a cup of coffee to go with it (cream and sugar was extra).

But soon the idea of serving coffee after a meal was reserved for special occasions such as weddings, anniversaries, bar mitzvahs and New Year's Eve. It wasn't enough to just serve the coffee. People began to toast each other with their cups, and waiters showed the can the coffee came from, before they poured it from a pot wrapped in a white napkin.

The coffeemakers started to put vintage years on the cans and connoisseurs emerged who could comment on the quality of each brand. They would say such things as "It's an unassuming little Maxwell House, but I think you'll be amused by its presumption" or "This 'Chock Full o' Nuts' has a nobility to it that you rarely find in any of the domestic brands. I would put it up against a 1975 Chase & Sanborn anytime."

The hostess or host would say rather proudly, "My grocer recommended this 'Instant Brand' over Nescafe. But it has to be drunk young when it's at its peak."

People started keeping "Coffee Cellars" which they showed off to their friends. There, gathering dust, lying on their sides, could be found Medaglio 1974, Wilkins 1976, Safeway All-Purpose Grind 1970 and A&P's Perculator Ground which came from beans picked from a special plantation outside of Rio de Janiero.

Arrogance of OSHA cut down

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — In the continuing war between a free people and the omnipotent state, the free people seldom win major battles. But they do win a few — and they won a big one the other day in Pocatello, Idaho. Brothers and sisters, let us rejoice.

With the crushing decision of a three-judge federal court in the case of Barlow's Inc., a key provision of the Occupational Safety and Health Act is reduced to so much rubble. Coming on top of similar decisions in other judicial circuits, the Idaho decision means that no businessman needs to submit any longer to the nitpicking, maddening, helter-skelter harassments of the OSHA inspectors. Subject only to the laws of assault, battery and mayhem, an employer can throw the inspectors out.

The question at issue in Barlow's was a straightforward question of constitutional law. The case arose last September when an OSHA inspector, Daniel T. Sanger, presented himself at the door of the plumbing, heating and air conditioning company. He demanded entry under a provision of the 1970 OSHA act authorizing inspectors "to enter without delay and at reasonable times any factory, plant, establishment, construction site, or other area, workplace, or environment where work is performed by an employee or an employer."

F. G. "Bill" Barlow, president of the company, might have saved thousands of dollars in legal fees if he had let Inspector Sanger in. So far as he knew, his shop was in good shape; no employee had complained of unsafe conditions. But Barlow feels strongly on these things. He stood squarely on his Fourth Amendment rights: No warrant, no admission.

The disputants went promptly into court. On Dec. 30, a three-judge panel upheld Barlow's position in an emphatic decree. Following the Supreme Court's reasoning in what are known as the Camara and See cases, the panel held OSHA's entry provision flatly incompatible with the Fourth Amendment.

The three judges in this case are among the heavyweights of the Western bar. M. Oliver Koelsch, senior judge of the Ninth Circuit, has been on the bench since 1951; Ray McNichols, chief district judge, went on the bench in 1964; J. Blaine Anderson of Boise has served since 1972. Their names on an order carry clout.

And it was some order: Section 8(a) is "unconstitutional and void in that it directly offends against ... the Fourth Amendment." The secretary of labor and the OSHA people "are hereby forever and permanently restrained and enjoined from acting or attempting to act pursuant to or in furtherance of Section 8(a) ... and from conducting or attempting to conduct any general searches or inspections of the non-public portions of the premises of the plaintiff ..."

The language went far beyond the order entered in Texas a year ago in the Gibson's Products case. There the federal court agreed to OSHA inspections if the inspectors obtained proper warrants. The Barlow's judges refused to make even that concession. "We decline the invitation to judicially redraft an enactment of Congress."

"We cannot accept the proposition," said Circuit Judge Anderson, "that the language of the OSHA inspection provisions envisions the requirement that a warrant be obtained before any inspection is undertaken. Certainly Congress was able, had it wished to do so, to employ language declaring that a warrant must first be obtained, the procedures under which it is to be obtained, and other necessary regulations. Congress did not do so and we refuse to accept that duty."

Hallelujah! But let me add this: No rational critic of OSHA can oppose the general purpose — to promote safe working conditions in American industry. The purpose is fine. But on the record, OSHA's costly programs have accomplished little. The inspectors function as police, prosecutors, juries and judges. To this arrogant outfit, such constitutional protections as due process, jury trial, and Fourth Amendment rights are meaningless. The agency's inspections are so haphazard that a company could go 10 or 20 years without seeing an inspector. Injuries ordinarily are to be deplored, but in crippling this outfit, the Western judges have performed a splendid service.

By JACK ANDERSON

HONG KONG — It was a map of an obscure stretch of the Chinese-Russian border that finally persuaded Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to open the door to China.

Although then-President Richard Nixon had raised the idea, Kissinger didn't think seriously about a detente with China until shooting broke out between Chinese and Russian border troops back in March, 1969.

The incident occurred on Chenpao Island in the Ussuri River, which flows between Soviet Siberia and Chinese Manchuria. Kissinger called for a map of the area. He noticed that the clash had occurred 5 miles from a Soviet railroad but 50 miles from a Chinese terminal, he told us.

Kissinger immediately concluded that the Chinese would never have provoked an incident so far from their supply line. He decided, therefore, that the Russians had started the shooting and that the Chinese would welcome a U.S. approach.

Today, the 5,000-mile border is quiet but tense. The intelligence reports are conflicting about the degree of hostility between Chinese and Russian border troops. Apparently, this depends largely upon the local commanders. But no serious incidents have been reported in the past few months.

The best U.S. estimate is that the Soviets have 45 divisions, seven of them

Merry-go-round

Detente with China: how it came about

armored, on their Chinese frontier. Several menacing air and missile units are also deployed along the border. The total Soviet force facing China is estimated at 800,000.

According to our sources, the Chinese don't consider this to be a large enough force to invade China. They believe the Soviets would have to transfer troops from the European front. This could be detected by satellites, the Chinese believe, in time for them to strengthen their defenses.

In the opinion of U.S. experts, the Chinese would be no match for the Russians on the battlefield.

The Chinese would be forced to fight largely with obsolescent weapons—recoilless rifles against tanks, inferior fighter planes against modern MIG-23s, masses of infantry against machines.

The Chinese have tested nuclear devices, with a four-megaton bang. But the ballistic missiles available to deliver the nuclear warheads are a decade behind the Soviet models.

Nevertheless, the Chinese commanders reportedly believe that the old strategies, which Mao Tse-tung used to win the mainland, would defeat an invading force. Mao looked upon the Chinese populace as a sea which, in the end, would drown the invaders. By his book, the Chinese would draw the enemy forces deep into the sea and then overwhelm them with humanity.

Mao summed up his battlefield tactics succinctly in these words: "Enemy advances, we retreat. Enemy halts, we harass. Enemy tires, we attack. Enemy retreats, we pursue."

U.S. military strategists are skeptical, however, that the Soviets would mount the kind of invasion the Chinese are anticipating. In any war between the two Communist titans, it is more likely that the Soviets would use their superior missile power to wipe out China's nuclear capability.

The only possible invasion, in the opinion of these experts, would be a "surgical strike" against specific targets. Under an umbrella of planes and behind a spearhead of tanks, the Soviets might drive against Sinkiang's nuclear facilities or Manchuria's industrial centers.

A confidential intelligence analysis suggests, meanwhile, that the Chinese commanders hope to avoid a military confrontation with Russia. This attitude could lead eventually to a Sino-Soviet detente. For it is now clear that the new government in Peking is backed by the army.

In fact, our sources contend that the real power in Peking is held by the senior military commanders. They played a pivotal part in the arrest of Chiang Ching, the widow of Mao Tse-tung, and three other Maoists in the Politburo. Our sources have gone so far as to describe the event as a "military coup."

It was executed by Che'n Hsi-lien, the commander of the Peking garrison, who is now regarded by our sources as the most powerful man in China. His superior, Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying, is in poor health and, therefore, is more of a front man.

The army anticipated a possible uprising after the Oct. 6 move against the "gang of four," as Madame Chiang and her three cohorts are now called. They controlled the militia, which could have been called into the streets.

The most dangerous spot was Shanghai, the stronghold of the Maoists. So Shanghai party leader A Tien-shui and Shanghai garrison commander Chou Chun-lin were summoned to Peking. They suspected foul play and arranged a code to alert their colleagues. A telephone call from Peking, complaining of a "stomach ache" would mean the pragmatists had taken control. A call about a "heart attack" would mean the Maoist leaders were in serious trouble.

According to clandestine reports reaching Hong Kong, both calls were made. The Shanghai leaders called a secret meeting after midnight on Oct. 8. Orders went out to mobilize 30,000 militiamen and arm them with guns instead of their customary truncheons. They also planned to go on the air to announce that Shanghai was in revolt against a "revisionist" takeover in Peking.

But the leaders couldn't agree on the final plans. Then their colleagues returned from Peking to report that it was too late. So the immediate danger in Shanghai was averted.

The army, meanwhile, has been forced to impose martial law in other areas.

At wit's end

Years of bliss

By ERMA BOMBECK

You hear a lot of talk these days about the marriages that don't last. One of my favorite parts of the newspaper is the section devoted to couples celebrating their 50th wedding anniversaries.

Some of the photographs reflect embarrassment over the fuss being made. Some show them standing three feet apart. Some husbands and wives even look alike.

But the part I like best is where they sum up their lives together. The other day I read where one couple said, "We've hauled water by horse and wagon, coped with the cold and the deep snow, raised and educated a family of ten, and lost a daughter, Virginia."

That's 50 years of life — condensed in 27 words.

You have to wonder. Were there other moments? Did they hang wallpaper together? Argue about who slept next to the wall? Toast a no-baby month? Become jealous over a guidance counselor?

Did she get sick of his same joke year after year? Did he tire of hearing about her arthritis? Did they wonder about their future together the year he taught her how to drive? The year his mother babysat and cleaned her oven? Was he cheap? Was she boring?

Did he have an annoying habit of picking his teeth with his tongue and making a clicking noise that drove her up the wall? Did she say every night for 30 years when he walked through the front door, "Is that you?"

Did they really love one another through fevers, flu, fatness, nausea, irritability and sarcasm — or did they just hang on?

Did they disappoint one another when the baby died, when he lost his job, or when she felt neglected?

Did she ever know he hated peppers in his meat loaf and she had put peppers in the meat loaf for 50 years? Did he ever suspect she hated houseslippers without heels, but buy them every Christmas?

Ten children... that's a lot of shoes, a lifetime of overbites, an eternity of "Can I's?"... endless evenings of PTA's, an uninterrupted span of "We've got the children to think about."

Golden anniversaries — like the metal — are very precious in this country. Pound for pound, they outclass everything else.

How do they do it? Different ways. As one golden celebrant replied when he was asked how he held on so long,

"I have hopes of getting in the last word."

Bond wishes Teasdale good luck

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Christopher S. Bond joined the ranks of former Missouri governors Monday as he turned the state executive branch over to Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale.

Bond wished good luck to Teasdale, a Democrat, after the new governor was sworn in during a blistery cold noon ceremony. Teasdale defeated Bond, a Republican, in the November general election.

"Thank you and good luck to you in the future," Teasdale said as he grasped his former opponent's extended hand.

Bond and his wife, Carolyn, sat on the inaugural platform during the 45-minute ceremony despite the near-zero temperatures and 15 mile-per-hour wind. Bond, who returns home to Mexico, Mo., joins Warren E. Hearnes, a St. Louis Democrat, and Forrest Donnell, a St. Louis Republican, as former living Missouri governors.

Scribes agree—championship fight generates more sparks

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — As the Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings lined up for Super Bowl XI, in a magnificent Rose Bowl setting with the snow-capped San Gabriel Mountains as a backdrop, a reporter in the press box could not restrain his enthusiasm.

"This must be the most exciting moment in all sports," he remarked.

Three seats away, a weatherbeaten old codger who must have logged countless typewriters up untold press box steps for numerous events of various description, overheard and demurred.

"Naw," he said. "Can't compare with a big heavy-weight prize fight."

The impromptu dialogue set off a lively discussion among newsmen, even as the game progressed, on what creates the fastest pulse beat among a caloused breed not easily impressed.

The consensus: No sports event creates sparks to match those that occur moments before two outstanding heavyweights enter the ring for a title fight. At the same time, it was agreed, there is no general sports spectacle that can bring lumps into the throats of strong men like the opening and closing pageantry of an Olympic Games.

"The tension before the first Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight ... I can think of nothing in my lifetime to match it," a fiftyish man observed. "I am sure it must have been the same when Dempsey went against Tunney, Louis against Schmeling, Rocky Marciano against Jersey Joe Walcott."

Down on the chalk-lined grass, the Raiders reversed an early bad break and stormed to a 16-0 lead at halftime. Interest spewed from the massive stadium like air from one of the colorful balloons.

A man from New Orleans again steered the conversation away from the year's premier pro football extravaganza.

"I've never been moved by anything as much as at Belmont in 1973 when Secretariat turned into the home stretch with a 31-length lead for his Triple Crown," he said. "The press box was so stunned there wasn't a sound for several seconds. Then came this deafening roar."

A championship pro football game, with all its attendant fanfare, can be exciting. At the same time, it can be a dud — as in the case of most Super Bowls where teams have been overly cautious.

Oakland's easy victory over Minnesota did not fall into that category. The overpowering dominance by the Raiders was enough to stir the most cynical soul.

The Super Bowl, by its very nature, isn't able to produce the warm, personal attachment that comes from a baseball World Series or, for that matter, a Masters golf tournament.

Baseball players become living, breathing characters — even to the millions watching on TV. Viewers see Luis Tiant chew, spit and exude large beads of sweat. They see a batter's muscles tense up and his eyes scan an outfield wall. They share the emotion.

Football players are held in isolation. On the field, their faces are covered with helmets and masks. Their emotion isn't seen. They become little more than pawns on a plastic board.

MU needs second wind to get past San Diego

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri, in between rugged bouts with Kansas and Oklahoma, had a bit of a breather Monday night.

But the Tigers needed a strong second wind to counter a rather asthmatic first half against hapless San Diego State.

"I think it was hard, maybe, to be prepared as we would be for a Big Eight game," said forward Jim Kennedy after Missouri defeated the Aztecs, 84-69, at Columbia.

Missouri was the only Big Eight team to see action Monday night as the rest of the league rested in preparation for a full slate Wednesday night.

The Tigers were lackluster through much of the opening 20 minutes, letting an 11-point lead slip away before rebounding to a 35-29 cushion at intermission.

"It's good to be back home at this time of year," said the Tiger boss. "Somebody has got to be playing at home. We've played six games on the road and even though some of them were on a neutral floor (Big Eight Tournament), it's good to be back."

The Tigers, 10-3, put the game away early in the second half with a nine-point burst that padded their margin to 52-38. San Diego State is 3-11.

Scott Sims finished with 24 points for Missouri, while Kennedy had 22. Percy Gilbert paced the Aztecs with 22.

Wednesday night's schedule has Oklahoma at Missouri, Iowa State at Kansas State, Oklahoma State at Kansas and Colorado at Nebraska.

Kentucky slips ahead of Cincinnati in poll

By The Associated Press

San Francisco is a solid No. 1 but Kentucky has slipped past Cincinnati into the No. 2 spot in this week's Associated Press college basketball poll.

Six different teams received first-place votes from the panel of 57 sports writers and broadcasters participating in the poll.

San Francisco, 17-0 following victories over Portland and Seattle last week, received 39 first-place votes and a total of 1,084 points. The Dons had succeeded Michigan in the top spot last week.

Kentucky, meanwhile, moved up a notch in the poll, released Monday, on the strength of a pair of tight Southeastern Conference victories over Georgia and Vanderbilt. The Wildcats, 9-1, received eight first-place votes and 847 points.

Cincinnati dropped to third place despite trouncing Temple 61-46 in its only game last week to raise its record to 10-0. The Bearcats picked up five first-place votes and 838 points.

Alabama, 12-0 after triumphs over Auburn, Louisiana State and Florida in SEC play last week, held fourth place with 738 points and one first-place ballot.

North Carolina, 10-1, climbed one spot to fifth with 688 points and three No. 1 votes, while Michigan, 9-1, was a distant sixth with 546 points and the remaining first-place ballot.

Wake Forest, 11-1, climbed from 10th to seventh with 484 points, largely on the strength of an 86-85 overtime win over Maryland. Nevada-Las Vegas, 13-1, moved from ninth to eighth with 385 points after winning three games last week.

Completing the Top Ten were Minnesota, 10-0, with 334 points, and Arizona, 11-1, with 288.

Marquette headed the Second Ten, followed by UCLA, Louisville, Maryland, Providence, Arkansas, Clemson, Memphis State, Notre Dame and Oregon.

Little expected in winter draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The man who will make the No. 1 pick in today's free agent draft thinks baseball should put the winter selections in cold storage.

"I, for one, question the wisdom of having a winter draft," said Danny Menendez, the director of scouting for the Montreal Expos. "The talent in the winter draft just doesn't compare with the June draft."

"I think we would save a lot of time and effort if we just combined the two drafts into one June draft."

The Expos will get the first pick in the winter draft because they finished last last season.

For the Expos, the loss really doesn't turn into much of a gain.

"It will not be a strong draft," said Menendez. "Historically and talent-wise, the January draft is never as strong as the June draft."

Menendez' fellow talent hunters agree with his assessment.

"This is the worst January draft we've ever had," said one scouting chief.

"It's a real low-quality draft," said another scout. "There's no outstanding boy in the whole bunch."

In the past, teams have come up with some January plums, like Tom Seaver, Carlton Fisk, Chris Chambliss and Garry Maddox. But the consensus of the scouts is that the best prospects won't be available until June, when their classes graduate high school or they are between school years in college.

"There are usually one or two prime kids who drop out of school," sighed one scout. "But the best kids now seem to be staying in school — at least until June."

Menendez wouldn't reveal the Expos' first pick.

"It would not be a prudent approach," he said. "Revealing our choices would alert every agent in America. The kids would be flooded with every legitimate and illegitimate agent around."

Whether scouts favor the winter draft or not, baseball's system of replenishing its talent is hanging by a legal thread.

A federal court has ruled that the football draft violates the antitrust laws because it severely restricts a player's freemarket potential.

Baseball's draft would receive the same treatment from the courts, but for a 1922 Supreme Court decision that gave the national pastime immunity from the antitrust laws.

The high court has said several times since 1922 that if baseball's unique exemption should be ended, Congress should do it. Last week, the House Select Committee on Sports approved a staff report which said it does not believe baseball should have an antitrust immunity, adding that a successor panel in the new Congress should continue to study the subject.

Connors awarded top tourney seed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defending champion Jimmy Connors drew the top seed Monday in the U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championship, to be played Jan. 24-30.

Bjorn Borg of Sweden was seeded second and Ilie Nastase of Rumania was seeded third in the $200,000 event.

The remainder of the top 10 seeds are Manuel Orantes of Spain, Adriano Panatta of Italy, Harold Solomon, Eddie Dibbs, Brian Gottfried and Arthur Ashe, all of the United States, and Ken Rosewall of Australia.

Jaworski intends to leave the Rams

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Quarterback Ron Jaworski, disenchanted with his pro football employers, says, "I will never play for the Los Angeles Rams again."

Jaworski, in a telephone interview, said he is completely disillusioned by the Rams' failure to give him an adequate chance, he has notified the Rams he is playing out his option and will be a free agent May 1.

Pat Haden and James Harris shared the bulk of the Los Angeles quarterbacking this season, but Haden, a rookie and Rhodes Scholar from the University of Southern California, caught the imagination of the fans and media.

"Pat did a good job, but he doesn't possess my ability, cushioned by four years experience as the pro," Jaworski said. "But in Los Angeles, a Southern California grad is like God, the newspapers ... don't give it to you straight."

"They emphasize Haden's accomplishments," he added, "but little was said about his having five interceptions in the Dallas and Minnesota games."

Jaworski said he was offered "$700,000 for a five-year arrangement last summer, after a hot season. When I hesitated, well, things didn't work out, even though I had a great training exhibition season."

From there he went to the bench in favor of first Harris and then Haden.

Looking ahead to a probable change of scenery, Jaworski said, "I prefer to play in the East, near my Lackawanna (N.Y.) home. There have been rumblings from Washington, Cleveland, New York. I know I can land a fine contract."

Menendez wouldn't reveal the Expos' first pick.

Green Ridge, Smithton win openers at Stover

By RON HIGGINS
Staff Sports Writer

STOVER — The 21st annual Stover Invitational Tournament got underway here Monday night with the defending champion, Smithton, upsetting the second-seeded Cole Camp Bluebirds, 44-43. The Tigers were seeded seventh.

In the second game, the Green Ridge Tigers seeded third, came from behind to defeat the sixth-seeded Otterville Eagles, 56-46.

A long jump shot by Smithton's Rodney Gibson with 2:52 remaining lifted the Tigers from a one-point deficit to a 40-39 lead. Smithton was never to trail in the game.

Cole Camp had an excellent chance to win the game later, though. After senior guard Kim Gooch sank a Bluebird bucket, the Tigers went into a stall offense on their end of the court.

On a pass intended for teammate Kelly Cook, Gibson threw the ball away and Cole Camp received the ball with 16 seconds remaining, only to miss a short shot. Also, forward Delwyn Duncan came up short of a winning bucket with a halfcourt shot bounding off the rim at the buzzer.

Cole Camp led at the end of both the first and second quarters, but Smithton came back to tie the score at 32 closing out the third period. Smithton forward John Hays led all scorers with 19 points. Gooch led Cole Camp with 18.

"We've got some underclassmen who are doing the job for us," said Andy Crist, the pleased Smithton coach.

"In the last four ballgames we've been coming around," he said. "We have some kids who have played junior high ball and no jayvee ball — they're realizing now what's going on."

Green Ridge overcame a 20-9 deficit at the close of the opening period and rallied within three, 20-17, midway through the second quarter. By halftime, Green Ridge pulled within a bucket, 23-21, on two Randy Scotten free throws with 47 seconds left in the first half.

The Tigers came out fired up in the second half, taking the lead for good late in the third quarter on a string of six unanswered points.

The Eagles could get no closer than three points in the fourth quarter as Green Ridge padded the lead down the final stretch.

Tiger coach Larry Barb was exceptionally pleased that his boys came back from the deficit and held their poise. "It took a while for us to get started," he stated. "I thought they were going to shoot us out of the gym there in the first quarter."

Otterville's flurry of turnovers in the final quarter helped out Barb's Tigers late in the game, enabling Green Ridge to put the game away.

"There's not a whole lot you can say about this game, except it was good to win," said Barb.

Tonight's action in the tournament pits first-seeded Stover against Northwest (Hughesville) at 7 p.m., and Lincoln against Tusculumbia at 8:30.

In other action around the Kaysinger Conference tonight Warsaw hosts Clinton and LaMonte travels to Sweet Springs.

Wild night in Oakland

Some 20,000 Oakland Raiders fans gathered in the Oakland Coliseum Monday night to pay tribute to the Super Bowl champs. The civic salute was marred by beatings, windshield smashings and purse snatchings that ended in 10 arrests and injuries to at least eight persons, police said. Three adults also were arrested for drunkenness.

Major colleges to vote on revamping Division I

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Smaller schools which carry the voting clout in the National Collegiate Athletic Association only get to watch today when the major colleges vote on a proposal for restructuring Division I.

They will do so with intense interest.

"I've never felt until now the point that the big schools might leave the NCAA," said Stanley J. Marshall, athletic director at South Dakota State University.

"We stand a very good chance of losing several fine institutions if reorganization is not approved. We will suffer. They will not suffer. We will suffer financially and in prestige."

Marshall pleaded with his fellow members of Division II to vocally support the reorganization plan, a package of proposals that sets criteria for membership in Division I.

The proposed criteria include one to require the top classification in both football and basketball, plus six other sports.

Division I basketball schools that presently have no football program expressed concern Monday over the loss of voting rights in Division I. Such a school could declare its intent to comply with the criteria and have three years to meet the requirements, but during that period they would be forced to vote in Division II.

There was the possibility an amendment would be offered to allow schools to vote in Division I matters involving the sport in which the school carries Division I status.

"This is basically an attempt to placate the football powers," said the Rev. Phillip Callaghan, NCAA faculty representative from San Francisco. "I've heard a lot of rhetoric about how much we owe them, but we all pay the same dues, don't we?"

San Francisco does not meet the eight-sport criteria and would drop to Division II. The school is ranked No. 1 nationally in The Associated Press college basketball poll.

Division II schools also will watch the Division I vote on athletic scholarships based on need. A straw vote during a roundtable Monday showed the division favors a plan offered by Oregon State to provide only tuition and mandatory fees for athletes, who would then apply for any other aid on a need basis through the channels used by the nonathlete student.

Stanley Galloway, commissioner of the Gulf South Conference, urged the Division II members to make certain Division I approves aid based on the need proposal first, citing a disadvantage to the smaller schools if they are unable to compete for athletes on the same basis as the larger schools by offering athletic grants.

Pitt writers select Bucs' Bill Robinson

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association has voted versatile Pirates infielder-outfielder Bill Robinson the Roberto Clemente Award.

Robinson, the fourth winner of the award, finished ahead of pitcher John Candelaria and shortstop Frank Taveras in balloting for the award.

He played all three outfield positions plus first and third base for the Pirates last season while batting .303 and tying Richie Zisk for the club's home run lead with 21.

The award is given each year to the Pirates player who exemplifies the sportsmanship of Clemente, who was killed in a plane crash on a mercy mission to earthquake-ravaged Nicaragua in 1972.

Past winners were Willie Stargell, Al Oliver and Dave Parker.

Slalom winner

MORZINE, France — JeanLuc Fournier of Switzerland nipped Arnold Senoner of Italy by .85 seconds and won the giant slalom of the European Cup ski series.

Hawks' comeback one point short

ATLANTA (AP) — "In Montana, they don't know anything about comebacks," said Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown after his Hawks erased a 20-point third-period deficit before losing 93-92 to the Phoenix Suns.

"All they know is who won or lost the game," said Brown, whose Hawks dropped their ninth National Basketball Association game in 10 starts. "You have to shake your head over the number of heart-breaking losses we have had."

"It was a great second half. The fans who did come out got something to cheer about. But even when you keep them close, it's still an 'L' (loss)," said Brown of the only NBA game played Monday night.

Only 2,408 fans braved chilly, windy weather. They also were treated to a shooting display by Atlanta's John Drew, who scored 29 points in his first action since injuring a knee three weeks ago.

Phoenix led by 20 points early in the third period before the Hawks narrowed the margin to 76-63 entering the final quarter.

Atlanta went ahead 88-87 on a Joe Meriwether basket

There is a real blunder in the play of today's hand. A real blunder, but of the sort that almost everyone makes. South won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs, led the six of hearts and finessed his queen. The finesse worked, but West dropped the jack. Now South couldn't lay down his ace and concede one trump trick. He had to lead a low heart to dummy's 10. East took his king and led out the ace-king of spades. South ruffed the second spade; entered dummy with the queen of diamonds; led

Ann Landers

Book will help 'black thumb'

Dear Ann Landers: It seems everybody takes their problems to you sooner or later so I've decided to join The Club. I realize gardening isn't your field but you seem to know experts all over and hopefully you can help me.

You've heard of a green thumb? Well, I have a black thumb. Every flower, plant, shrub or growing vegetable I touch seems to die. My neighbors on both sides have wonderful luck with their astatum lilies, moss roses, pansies and daffodils. Their indoor plants thrive. Their lawns are like velvet. My flowers never make it. My plants are pathetic and my lawn is a disgrace. Even my trees get odd diseases.

I've had two florists come look at my "problems." They just shook their heads and said, "You ought to try another hobby." I love growing things and am not going to give up so easily. Please suggest something. — Typhoid Mary

Dear Mary: Don't despair. Help is on the way. A charming and informative book, "First Garden" by C. Z. Guest, will tell you exactly what you need to know. The publisher is Putnam and the price is $8.95. The book is so beautifully illustrated by Cecil Beaton that people with green thumbs love it!

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago you described as "revolting" a doll which, when its arm is twisted, swells up in a certain places and produces a pair of breasts. Will you please comment on another one of the year's most profitable "toys"?

The ad for this horror says, "Uncle Sherman has something to show you." It is billed as "The Original Flasher Doll" and sells for — would you believe — $20?

Uncle Sherman isn't much to look at but a quick lift of his beige trench coat is sure to startle the most sophisticated of viewers. At least 50,000 of the disgusting things have been sold to date and the com-

The first step

Walt Disney sculptor Blaine Gibson puts the finishing touches to the facial features of President-elect Jimmy Carter. Sculpting the head is the first step in creating a full-sized, totally life-like moving figure of the new president. It will appear with figures representing the 37 other chief executives in the Hall of Presidents exhibit at Disney World in Florida. Completion of the Carter figure is scheduled for late March. Teacher describes training techniques

Miss Sue Reeves, a Sedalia State School No. 21 teacher for emotionally disturbed children with severe behavioral disorders, described her special training techniques to members of the Rotary Club at the regular Monday noon meeting of the club at the Ramada Inn.

Miss Reeves reported there are 36 young people between the ages of 5 and 21 enrolled at the state school, which is located in the basement of the First Christian Church, 200 South Limit, and one home-bound student who is unable to attend and receives home instruction. There are four teachers for these severely handicapped children and Miss Reeves reported she has five severe behavior disordered children ranging in age from 9 to 14, whose exhibited behavior interferes with their learning in a normal classroom.

Characteristics of these children, she stated, include: Being non-verbal, or if they talk, they usually echo back the words spoken to them; screaming, laughing, singing at inappropriate times; avoiding eye contact and often pulling away or screaming when someone tries to touch them; sitting or playing alone; not active in group events; being physically dangerous to themselves — biting themselves, banging their heads, scratching or tearing at their skin; rocking, pacing or running around the classroom; flipping their hands or twirling their fingers and tantruming when the physical environment is changed and the activity schedule is altered.

Teaching, she reported, is on a plus-minus system, with a new schedule each day. Each session starts off with a plus — something the children like to do. This desensitizes school and makes coming to school fun. The next activity is a work or minus activity which

Registration deadline for course set

K.C. orchestra to perform at Warrensburg

WARRENSBURG — The Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra, featuring pianist Malcolm Frager, will perform in concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Hendricks Hall on the Central Missouri State University campus here.

The orchestra, under the direction of Maurice Peress, will perform works by Mozart, Corigliano, Thomson and Strauss.

Frager, a St. Louis native, is the only pianist ever to win what Time magazine has described as "two of the toughest competitions in music." These triumphs were first prize at the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium International Piano Competition in Brussels and the Edgar M. Leventritt Competition in New York City.

The concert has been arranged by the CMSU convocation committee with the assistance of the Missouri Arts Council.

Freight train runs off rails

BEVIER, Mo. (AP) — Railroad tracks were blocked here for about 30 minutes Monday after a 49-car Burlington Northern freight train derailed.

No injuries were reported, although nine loaded cars and 10 empty cars went off the track.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Reader's nose turns big, red

Dear Dr. Lamb — In the last two years I have noticed that the complexion of my nose has become red in appearance, and it has increased in size. I also have three to four visible veins at the bridge of my nose. It has become a concern to me and is giving me an inferiority complex because of my physical appearance.

I'm 62 years old, 6 feet 3 and weigh 210 pounds. I take Hydrofuril, and my blood pressure is now satisfactory. I asked my doctor if the change in my nose is from high blood pressure, and he informed me it was due to alcohol.

I do not classify myself as a drinker. We have our four or five social parties each year; we have our drinks, but that is the extent of it. I was disappointed in the doctor's answer. On my last visit he looked at my nose and asked if I drink beer. I told him I drink very little beer as I am not fond of it. He didn't say anymore.

Do you have any information for me? I am not getting anywhere this way.

the skin leads to the other changes.

I think you should ask you doctor to refer you to a dermatologist. In early cases involving the face, tetracycline pills (an antibiotic) taken daily seem to help stop the process. The reason is not entirely clear. You will have a special problem here because Hydrodiuril is a diuretic, and tetracyclines interact with it to cause a rise in the level of blood urea to significant levels. There may be some problems in treating both your high blood pressure and rosacea at the same time. You may need to mention this to your dermatologist.

In the early stages the changes in the blood vessels in the nose can be treated with electrolysis. A small needle placed in the superficial vessels destroys them and helps stop the process. Later tetracyclines do not help and the condition is too far advanced for electrolysis. In these cases it may be necessary to surgically remove the markedly deformed skin over the nose. A good plastic surgeon can usually do a remarkable job of improving the condition.

Rosacea may be associated with the development of acne of the nose, but the two conditions are different.

Milk truck salvation for Princeton

PRINCETON, Kan. (AP) — A milk truck helped quench the thirst of this small eastern Kansas community.

Princeton lost its steady water supply Jan. 3 when its main source, Middle Creek, dried up.

Then sub-zero weather halted construction on a temporary pipe line from Princeton to nearby Rantoul.

So the milk truck, with a capacity of 3,000 gallons, made two trips Monday to Ottawa, five miles to the north, to supply about one-fifth of the town's normal water usage of 30,000 gallons a day.

A number of trucks were originally set to make the run but only one became available for the chore.

However, officials said, more milk trucks will be employed for water runs until the weather breaks and work on the pipe line is completed.

LIMITED WARRANTY

WARDS warrants its passenger car tires for specified miles when used on passenger cars, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of defects, normal road hazard failure, or premature tread wearout unless due to misalignment, WARDS will:

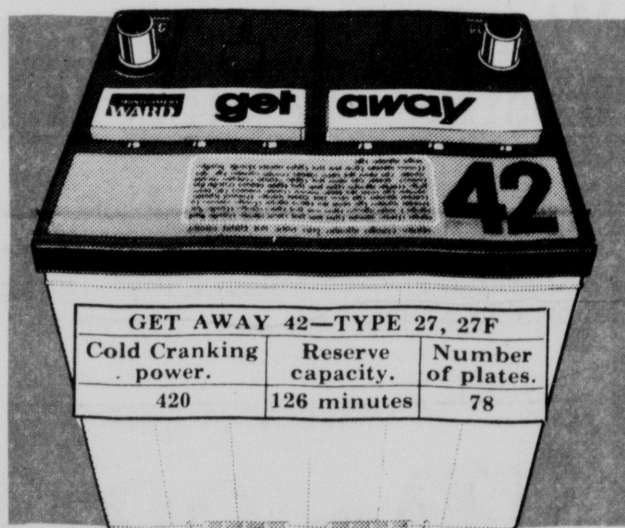

1. During first 10% of warranted mileage, replace the tire free; 2. During the remaining mileage, replace for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

For adjustments, return tire to Wards with Warranty Booklet.

Prorata charge based on price in effect at time of return of branch to which returned, including Federal Excise Tax.

Fits most US cars.

Installed free.
